Pittsburgh welfare Worker to Speak at Opening Meeting

The Salem Welfare association's Community Chest army of 150 or more workers, fully mobilized and organized, is ready to go into action in the 1940 chest campaign with the goal set at $20,350.

The campaign workers will get the final instructions which will send them on their way at a dinner meeting at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday at the Memorial building.

The drive for contributions will officially get under way Wednesday morning, continuing until Thursday evening, with the teams reporting on both evenings.

Manager L. H. Colley has announced the personnel of his teams and the individual groups will complete their own organization work Tuesday night. A particular territory has also been assigned to each team.

Welfare Officers
W. F. Bolen is chairman of the executive committee. Atty. Joel H. Sharp is president of the welfare association and James H. Wilson is secretary.

Nine local agencies will share in the distribution of the fund during the coming year. They include the Red Cross, the Salem City hospital, the Central Clinic, the Memorial building, the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Friendly Council and the Home for Aged Women.

The Girl Scouts became a Community Chest unit only this spring after the organization had shown a remarkable growth during the past year.

Leo G. Griffith of Pittsburgh, veteran executive of innumerable Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania campaigns, will be the principal speaker at the Tuesday evening meeting.

Trailing Tractor, Patrolmen Recover Stolen Farm Machine

Something new in the way of a motor vehicle theft was solved Saturday night by Salem state highway patrolmen.

William Mills, a farmer living just south of Kensington in Carroll county, informed the patrol that his farm tractor had been stolen. Tracks revealed that it had been driven away.

Sgt. Patrolman P. D. Barnes trailed the tractor marks from the Mills farm, eventually coming to a field between New Franklin and Minerva where the tractor was located.

Leland Harsh, 20, of R. D. Minerva, who lived nearby, admitted, the patrol said, stealing the tractor. He was turned over to Carroll county authorities.

FIREMAN WINS OLD POST BACK

Liverpool Man Reinstated by Order of Judge Lones

LIVERPOOL, May 6.—Cecil Stillwell, furloughed East Liverpool fireman, was ordered reinstated today by Judge W. F. Lones who had heard evidence in Stillwell's suit to compel Liverpool city officials to name him to the department.

Stillwell was not named when municipal heads recently made nine appointments to the fire department. Judge Lones ruled today that Stillwell, who did not take the recent civil service examination, was eligible for the job and held priority rights.

Counsel for the plaintiff said he intended to file similar suits for other former Liverpool firemen who have not been re-hired.

At the same time, however Judge Lones ruled against Delmar Manning's petition. Manning, not a fireman, received a high grade in the recent exam but was not appointed.

EUROPE FEARS WAR TRANSFER TO NEW FRONT

Capitals of Balkan Nations Keyed To High Tension

TROOPS MARCH TO BORDER STATIONS

Events Appear to Be Moving to Crisis In South-eastern Area

Events appeared to be moving swiftly toward a crisis in southeastern Europe today, overshadowing developments in the north where German airmen, blasting at the Allies' last foothold in Norway, reported they had bombed and damaged another British battleship off Narvik.

Balkan capitals were keyed to high nervous tension as the sound of marching men and the echo of military preparations on all sides convinced them that Europe's great warring powers were gradually coming to grips on a new front.

Turks Mass Troops

Turkey, bound to the Allies by mutual assistance pacts, was reported massing troops along her frontier facing Greece and Bulgaria. Germany concentrated men and munitions near the Yugoslav and Hungarian frontiers, Russia bolstered to more than six divisions her troops facing Hungary on the north; Italy strengthened her forces along the Yugoslav border and in the Dodecanese islands.

Units of the British and French battle fleets, strongly based at Alexandria, appeared in the Aegean sea and there were vague reports—apparently of German origin—that the allies were planning to land troops in Salonika, Greece.

The reports coincided with the opening of a new railway running north from Salonika to the Bulgarian frontier, giving that Aegean port a new strategic significance.

There were strong indications that both Germany and Britain were dicker for Bulgarian support in event of the outbreak of war in the southeast.

Promises Bulgaria Loan

Britain was understood to have promised Bulgaria a large loan and a corridor to the Aegean with the agreement of Greece, in order to insure a land passage for troops to Roumania.

Budapest was stirred by announcement of the discovery of a huge spy and propaganda organization and the arrest of 200 undercover agents said to have been working for both France and Russia.

Foreign diplomats, drawing their own conclusions from these developments, sent pessimistic reports concerning the situation to their governments at home.

Providing an obligato to the mounting thunder in southeastern Europe were events on the western front, where fighting surged for the third successive day around French outposts in the Saar sector.

The French high command noted "marked activity" of artillery and advance units in this region following a series of determined but unsuccessful local thrusts by the Germans.

Tighten Narvik Siege

British naval and land forces were reported to be tightening the siege on beleaguered German troops, numbering between 3,000 and 4,000, at the Arctic Norwegian port of Narvik, in a desperate attempt to counter the loss of prestige suffered in the Allies' withdrawal from south and central Norway.

At the same time, the British admiralty acknowledged the loss of the 1,870-ton destroyer Afridi, sent to the bottom by Nazi bombs while conveying allied troops out of Namsos.

The Afridi carried a crew of 219. The sinking of the destroyer marked the 47th British naval loss of the war announced by the British.

Two of the attacking bombers were said to have been shot down by British warships.

Kennedy Takes Rap At His Own Party

COLUMBUS, May 6.—Democratic harmony, maintained outwardly with polite restraint by most of the party's seven aspirants for governor, was tested today as candidates entered the last week of the primary campaign.

William J. Kennedy, one of the seven, tossed some caustic remarks at Democratic colleagues Saturday night and, despite a mild rebuke, told newspapermen "that was just a starter."

The former secretary of state, after hearing Martin L. Davey denounce the Republican administration of Gov. John W. Bricker in a meeting at Lima, declared:

"Bricker is not the issue. The issue is: Shall the Democrats put their house in order?"

He also said his party needed new leadership; and added that labor disputes should be settled "without guns or bayonets," a statement interpreted by observers as referring to former Governor Davey's use of troops in the "Little Steel" strike of 1937.

251 New Cars Sold

LIVERPOOL, May 6.—Clerk of Courts Carl Stacey announced today that certificates of title for 251 new cars, 30 new trucks and two motorcycles were issued by his office during April. This was a decrease from the peak of 300 new cars and 57 new trucks sold during March, but shows an increase over April of 1939 when certificates of title were issued for 188 new cars and 32 trucks.

Ralph Snyder Shot In Heart During Fight

Succumbs Almost Instantly; A. O. Lower, 45, Special Policeman, Exonerated by Stark County Coroner E. C. Reno

Ralph B. (Tunney) Snyder, Jr., 21, at one time fullback on the Salem High school football team, was shot and killed in a fight with a special Alliance policeman at an Alliance East End home shortly after 3 a. m. today.

Dr. E. C. Reno of Canton, Stark county coroner, said he would give a self defense verdict, thereby exonerating A. O. Lower, 45, the officer who shot Snyder.

Lower, reported to have been knocked to the ground by the Salem youth, said he intended only to fire into the air to scare Snyder and that as he did so, Snyder leaped toward him and was struck by the bullet. The shot pierced his heart and he died almost instantly, Alliance police reported.

Lower, a former captain on the Alliance police force and among those furloughed in an economy move several years ago, had been hired as a special officer to guard properties in the Alliance district.

He was summoned to the home of June Kennedy, 1027 E. Jersey st., by Labeen C. Smith, an employee, who found Snyder on the floor asleep, and not knowing his identity, decided to call Lower.

The officer reported to Harry B. Stark, Alliance chief of police, that he tried to arouse Snyder and received no response but that when he slapped the youth in the face Snyder jumped up and started to fight.

Lower said he was knocked down; and that the fight continued to an adjoining room where Snyder forced the officer to a closet and struck him further, according to Chief Stark's report.

Lower said he managed to get to the back porch where Snyder struck him and knocked him to the ground. The officer said he couldn't reach his blackjack which was in his rear pocket and grabbed his gun, which was handy. He told Chief Stark he didn't mean to hit the boy, but only to scare him.

The officer was reported beaten about the face and head. Chief Stark said Henry DeRienzo, who was with Snyder, left the house when the fighting started to go to the Alliance police station. He was not a witness to the shooting, according to police.

Native of Alliance

Snyder, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Snyder of Akron, formerly of Salem, was born in Alliance Sept. 30, 1918. He drove a truck for the Frank Knepper distributing company.

He attended Salem High school and played on the Quaker football team in 1935, 36 and 37.

He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Robert Snyder of Salem and Paul, residing in Los Angeles.

The body was brought to the Stark Memorial where the funeral service will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday in charge of Rev. S. T. Magann, pastor of the First Baptist church. Interment will be in Grandview cemetery.

Friends may call Tuesday evening at the Stark Memorial.

IN THE EIGHTH MONTH

Eight months of experience with Europe's newest war have made tell-tale impressions in the United States.

Deepest is the impression that the war effort of the Allies is no match so far for the war effort of intensely militarized Germany.

Possibility of German victory and a Nazi-dictated peace has forced itself into American attention.

Confidence in isolation as a national policy has diminished in ratio to the decline of confidence in the Allied war effort.

British "muddling through" has looked even worse than usual as opposed to German "dynamism."

Thoughtful Americans have begun to examine for the first time some of the more frightening aspects of their own "muddling through" with special regard to far eastern policy.

A few vigorous critics of United States policy concerning Europe have charged that it is a dangerous deception; that the natural wish for isolation, leading to the pledge of non-intervention, has created a fool's paradise which would be shattered the instant Americans ceased to believe in Allied victory. Isolation never has been tested by the possibility of totalitarian triumph before.

These are vitally significant trends of thought—significant because as recently as the beginning of last September not one of them was in evidence. Their appearance eight months later perhaps is the best available measure of the country's drift—a drift that has carried it from preoccupation with domestic problems to a no less intense preoccupation with international problems.

OBVIOUS STRATEGY

All that an armchair general needs is a map of Europe and a strong imagination.

Germany is protected on the west by fortifications, on the east by its conquest of Poland, on the north by virtue of having gained the upper hand in Scandinavia.

It is vulnerable on its southern front.

Hence, there is agitation in Yugoslavia, whose government has been criticized by Italy for defense measures against invasion from Albania in the south and Italy in the northwest. Hence, an Allied battle fleet is being massed in the eastern Mediterranean. Hence, officials of Balkan governments are being warned by Germany there is no danger unless the Allies attempt invasion.

The problem of war is to engage the enemy at a point where he must fight at a disadvantage. Three of Germany's four fronts have been closed temporarily. The Balkan front remains. From the beginning of the war it has been inevitable that the war would spread to southeastern Europe. Apparently, the time has come. The Mediterranean is being cleared for action. The Allied army assembled in the near east is reported ready.

The armchair generals can see the whole thing as clearly as though they, themselves, had plotted the strategy. Germany is going to be engaged simultaneously in Scandinavia, France, the Balkans. Except for its understanding with Russia, a fourth front would be Poland.

ROASTING MR. CHAMBERLAIN

For a number of reasons Mr. Chamberlain has come to be a symbol of mossbacked futility throughout a large part of the world.

The Germans, of course, break into a steaming sweat at the mention of his name. He is their arch enemy; alternately he is a clown.

Italians have been giggling at him much longer than the Germans. It was their dictator's idea to hold him up to ridicule while there still was muttered talk of Anglo-German "rapprochement."

Americans think of him as the man with the umbrella, any man with an umbrella being ludicrous in this country. At the same time a great many Americans think of him as a symbol of respectability being kicked about brutally through no fault of his own—because that's the way things are in wartime.

It is in this last role that Mr. Chamberlain will appear this week, in all likelihood, as Britain's other politicians whip him to ribbons for not winning the war between dawn and breakfast some fine morning. He will be defended, too, but principally his function will be to take the tongue lashing his contemporaries are twitching to give him.

All this in spite of the fact the prime minister of Great Britain probably has had no more to do with the war than the owner of a big league baseball team has to do with what happened to his boys in the second inning. It is very sad. It is one of the least admirable things about government that when something needs a scapegoat the head man has to be it.

The illusion of omnipotence is particularly hard to admire when fostered in representative governments. But perhaps it is necessary to throw out the head man once in a while as a means of blowing off steam.

Could it be that Mr. Roosevelt might possibly want a third term for the purpose of paying off the inordinate debt that has mushroomed during his administration? Fulfillment of some such desire would be a good joke to play on posterity.

The Tibetans have a ceremony for driving out the devils of the old year, before the new year starts. The whole world could stand such a ceremony as that, if it were only effective.

Trying to follow the war is like trying to gather the gist of conversation at a mixed party, where everyone is talking at once and nobody is listening.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, May 7.

Progress, prosperity and generally propitious circumstances may be looked for on this day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects. It is a time for promoting projects of a novel, revolutionary and un-hackneyed character, which will attract the attention of superiors, especially in large corporations, or where the influence of political, diplomatic or secret organizations is desired. Strategy or intrigue may be factors in connection with group action. Professional advancement in many directions is under excellent auspices, as are social aims.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great promise, with progress and advancement in many new directions. Fresh or novel ideas, even though radically different from old methods, will attract the attention of superiors, progressive organizations and forward-looking groups. Political or fraternal influence is assured, and the professions are in line for outstanding recognition and preferment. Likewise, social innovations will prove attractive and lucrative. Push to high goals of originality and independent creations or plans.

A child born in this day may have outstanding constructive ability in new, fresh and untried fields, especially in all concerning professional skill or originality. Progress is assured through superiors and high influence.

Rapid Healing Of Ulcers Discussed By Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
DO ULCERS of the stomach ever heal?

They heal so rapidly that hours, rather than days, mark the space of time. This is the information we get from the new specialty of gastroscopy—examination of the stomach with a lighted instrument.

The pioneers in this method of examination see the inside of a living stomach under circumstances different from what anybody else has ever seen it. They tell us that they can see an ulcer one day, practically see it forming, and the next day find it has entirely disappeared. But these are acute ulcers, not like the ones that cause chronic indigestion; the chronic ulcer of the stomach may take years to heal.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In 1920 a young physician in Munich, named Schindler, who had been using an old-fashioned gastroscope, which was a rigid metal tube and almost impossibly cruel and torture-making for the patient, devised, with the help of an optician, a flexible tube provided with many lenses at short intervals.

These flexible gastroscopes can be introduced into the stomach without much discomfort.

MAKING LIVER DIET MORE PALATABLE

What are the uses of liver diet and is there any advantage in one kind of animal liver over the other?

Liver is used now for a great many conditions, not only for primary anemia but for many forms of anemia due to liver deficiency. It is also good for the skin. One kind of animal liver is just about as good as another.

Of course, liver can be obtained in the form of an extract but it is, in most cases, cheaper and easier to use it as a food. To many people it is not palatable or quickly grows monotonous and for that reason I append a few recipes:

Chicken Liver Soup—One pint of chicken broth; four ounces chicken livers and hearts; one heaping teaspoonful flour; one teaspoonful butter; salt and pepper to taste. Bring the chicken broth to the boiling point. Blend the flour and butter with a little of the broth and add to the broth. Then add the chicken liver which has been cooked for 10 minutes and minced.

Liver and Corn Creole—Two cups ground liver (parboiled); one can corn; two tablespoons chopped red pepper; one cup milk; two table-spoons butter. Put the liver, corn, red pepper and milk into a saucepan. Cook slowly for 10 minutes, season with salt and pepper and add the butter. Place the mixture in a baking dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs, dot with butter and bake 10 minutes.

Mock Terrapin—Add to one-half cup cooked and chopped mushrooms one cup brown sauce and one-half cup liver cubes, the liver having previously been parboiled. Season with a dash of mustard, a dash of paprika and one tablespoonful of lemon juice.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

THE CAIRO GARTER MURDERS

By VAN DYCK
MASON

CHAPTER XVIII

"Let's check dates," North suggested, seating himself. "It's funny how often breaking down a series of dates clears the atmosphere and brings out the facts."

"As you wish, Captain. The first garter murder took place on November 23, 1936—almost a year ago."

"Um, I see. And the last, barring Follonsbee's murder, was discovered a few days ago, the sixth of November. But I am right, am I not, that there have been none since?"

"Yes, Wolff was the last, though he must have been killed much earlier—sometime in October. When found his body was sun-dried."

"North's mental screen flashed a vision of Follonsbee's face going gray when he heard of the German's death."

"Who was Wolff?"

Clive shrugged. "He was supposed to be a wholesaler in hardware and machinery with an office on the Sharia Boulak. We suspected he was dealing across the Transjordanian border and were about to make an arrest when he disappeared."

"That was on October 20?"

"Hugh North mentally underlined the date then asked, 'I suppose you've kept these garters?'"

As they went out North's eye caught a calendar showing the date as November 18. Um. And Wolff, presumably, had disappeared to his death on October 20.

Hung on a row of pegs in a steel locker—were over twenty identical garters—black with a red rosette!

"Mind if I handle a few of them?"

"Help yourself."

Selecting half a dozen at random, North produced a pocket magnifying glass from the end of his watch chain and scanned the specimens with intent care.

"All made by the same person?"

"I'd say so—weaver's knots on all of them."

Clive consulted a notebook, then looked up. "I say, Captain, could you tell us whether these silly things have ever been worn?"

"The answer I'd say is 'yes.' See here where the threads join the elastic covering? The black silk fabric has been stretched and twisted and the threads of the material pulled." Using a pencil he then indicated a faint whitish smudge. "Remember, Bruce?"

"Yes. The one in Follonsbee's case was like this. What is that whitish stuff?"

"Powder. I shouldn't wonder. Probably it is dusting powder such as a woman or a luxury-loving man might use after a bath."

"I'd suggest, Inspector, that this garter be taken apart." He selected one of the most powder-marked garters. "A vacuum cleaner, carefully cleaned of course beforehand, should get us enough powder to secure a sample to submit for analysis."

"I'll see that an analysis is made at once, Spofford. Our chemist will be your friend for life. This sort of thing is just his dish."

"I hope he's around," North said briskly. "There's another little job I'd like to talk to him about."

"Right. He's probably next door messing with his materials."

As they went out, the American pulled from his pocket an envelope bearing the letterhead of the SS Fort Lucknow, but did not open it.

"Beastly nuisance there wasn't more evidence in the Follonsbee murder! Kilgour tells me there wasn't even the ghost of a fingerprint and that the gun and cartridge case must have been chucked overboard," remarked Clive.

"Unfortunately, that's quite true," North admitted. "But there is evidence of importance."

"What have you got in that envelope?" the chief inspector inquired while entering a large, well-equipped laboratory.

"Some fragments of a towel used to muffle that shot aboard the Lucknow."

"True," Chief Inspector Clive's predictions, they discovered. Dr. Spofford, a genial fat man suggestive of Father Christmas minus his beard, bent low over a series of test tubes, an acid-stained smock draped capelike about him.

When Clive told him what North had in mind, the doctor shook hands with enthusiasm.

"Hope you'll find some way of putting a crimp in that Armstrong's murder fest."

"Hope so, too," came the cheerful rejoinder. "I want to make a wet analysis of this rag."

"Right-o," said the chemist.

"What are you trying to find Clive demanded curiously."

It was Kilgour who replied. "I fancy Hugh's going to attempt to make an analysis of burnt powder on the fabric. Right?"

"Go to the head," North grinned as he dropped into a chemical flask small pieces of charred cloth retrieved from the floor of Follonsbee's bathroom. He commenced to shake it gently....

For over half an hour North and Spofford busied themselves over beakers, porcelain basins and Bunsen burners. The final tests had been applied and the clocks of the city were striking nine o'clock when North said:

"Suppose we write our opinions on the powder separately."

"Right."

The two men bent briefly, writing on the lead-topped workbench.

"I'm anxious," Clive confessed heavily. "to see if you gentlemen agree. What do you say, Spofford?"

"Test indicates powder was manufactured on the Schultz formula," read the chemist. "probably by the Pegasus Arms Company of Mannheim, Germany. And you, Captain?"

North read. "Absence of nitrate indicates either Eley's 'Grand Prix' or Schultz's formula. Schultz's formula is used principally by the Wotan Wappen Werke and the Pegasus Small Arms Manufactory, both of Germany."

"Pegasus!" Chief Inspector Clive snapped his fingers. "That's a good lead—what is it?"

"Something happened this afternoon that you'd better know about." Without wasting words Hugh North then sketched his receipt of Follonsbee's radiogram and produced a copy of his reply.

Clive became quietly excited. "Latitude 30 degrees and longitude 33 degrees? That would be off Port Said. Might wire the Admiralty to take a look-see around there."

"You might, but please don't," I'd like to keep the Lydia as a sort of an ace in the hole, always provided her captain hasn't smelt a rodent already."

North was stripping off his chemist's apron when he launched at Clive, very casually, the question he had been burning to ask. "Is a young lady called Moira McLeod known to you?"

Had he been jabbed with a hatpin Christopher Clive could not have been more startled. "Eh? What was that?"

"I asked if you know Moira McLeod."

Infinitely anxious became Clive's expression as he countered, "Where did you know her?"

For an instant the man from G-2 deliberated describing their first encounter but something in Clive's expression restrained him and he explained briefly. "Oh—er—I met her rather informally—this afternoon at Hasid Pasha's cocktail party. I gather you know her?"

"Why, yes," replied the chief inspector, flushing to the roots of his sun-paled hair. "Quite well." To an acute listener his tone implied much beyond his words. "She is, in fact—er—connected with this bureau."

"What!" North caught his breath as does a man on an icy sidewalk. Of the many surprising things he had heard and seen during the last few hours, this was indeed the most astounding.

Moira McLeod an agent for the C. I. D.? His intelligence balked at accepting the fact. Suddenly Clive announced:

"Today something serious has happened in Jerusalem." The chief inspector's voice deepened. "Sir George Ruthven this afternoon received an alarming radiogram from our high commissioner there. He is most apprehensive because troops which have been keeping order in the interior are sailing to-day for home. It's just the chance the Arabs have been waiting for."

Then he added:

"Well, Captain, have you any suggestions, any ideas? Lord knows we'll cooperate on any reasonable plan."

point of view. But we can't give you even the semblance of official status. If anything were to happen—well—it would be on your own responsibility."

The American's narrow dark head inclined. "I quite understand." He hesitated. "I've only one request to make and that is that no one beyond you, Kilgour, and your superiors are informed that I'm working with you. It would spoil everything if it gets out, so the secret must be kept from fellow workers, such as Miss McLeod."

Chief Inspector Clive colored, but quickly nodded his assent.

The Hospital And Its Development

In connection with the observance of Hospital day May 12, this series of articles briefly tells of the development of hospital service and medicine from the early days until the present.

Eighteenth Century Hospitals

The eighteenth century saw the establishment, after much controversy, of the first dispensaries or out patient departments. In England, then in Germany these free or part pay clinics abounded.

In 1727 Desaguliers invented the first air conditioning machine. It was originally used in prisons and other public buildings and finally was introduced into hospitals, the record states, "to pump fresh air into and foul air out of the rooms." No doubt this service was much needed since cleanliness and sanitation were sadly lacking.

Such nursing as was provided in this period was crudely and inadequately done by women without either training or character. Petty larceny and drunkenness were habitual.

The title "nurse" had not yet originated. The terms used were "squire" for the day attendant and "watch" for the night person.

The rise and wane of hospital development follows the culture of the times. Since the Elizabethan period was one of materialism and brutality the eighteenth century was a re-regressive rather than a progressive period in hospital history.

Early American Hospitals

The very first American hospital of which we have any record was built in 1524 in Mexico City. The next one was the Hotel Dieu of Quebec, Canada, opened more than a century later in 1639 which still is rendering service after three centuries. Not until 1663 was there a hospital on United States territory. In that year an institution for sick soldiers was opened on Manhattan Island. Several pest houses were established in these very early days as was also one contagious disease hospital in Boston in 1717.

Real hospital history in the United States began in Philadelphia with the founding in 1732 of "old Blockley," which later became and still exists as Philadelphia General hospital. Benjamin Frank-

Endres and Gross Suggest Expression With Flower Gift

Your mother's background may be different. Your mother may have lived on a farm, she may have been a pioneer, a teacher, one who guided many others besides you; or she may have been born in a foreign land and uprooted from her accustomed way of life, risking ridicule and difficulties of a new language and a different culture so that her children would have that which she was denied.

She may be a young-modern mother, a clubwoman and a patron of the arts. But she's still a generous, gentle lady... a mother—and a sentimentalist. Everything you do for her or give her on Mother's day is a source of joy, and, to her, a reward for everything she has done for you.

Flowers for Mother?

Yes, indeed, there is no gift more valued in sentiment, meaning and emotion. You can give something greater in financial value if you choose, but nothing can convey more adequately the real feelings of the soul than the beauty of flowers.

Mothers love flowers. They appreciate them. They want to know that their children think of them in terms of beauty. And what could be more tender, more expressive, than flowers.

Mother's day is Sunday, May 12. You have ample time to prepare for this thrill of gift giving to one you love. At this time, Endres and Gross flower shop has a wonderful array of everything that is obtainable in the floral line, including both potted plants and cut flowers—fresh, beautiful and lovely.

Give Endres and Gross a ring—that's all that's necessary, and they'll be glad to take care of your every problem in a way you'll find eminently satisfactory.

'Cotton Maid' Hails Memphis Carnival

MARY NELL PORTER, America's charming "Maid of Cotton" and ambassador of good will for the Cotton Carnival at Memphis, Tenn., May 14-18, stops in front of the Capitol at Washington, D. C., in the course of her 15,000-mile tour of the United States. She used a Mercury club convertible during her stay in the national capital. Sponsored by the National Cotton Council, in cooperation with the Cotton Exchange, Miss Porter during the next few weeks will visit 30 principal cities in the northeastern states, conducting all-cotton fashion shows and stressing the growing importance of cotton as a material for fashionable attire. She is a graduate of Sophie Newton College, New Orleans, a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, and spent one year at the University of Mexico at Mexico City.

LOCAL BUYING'S LESS EXPENSIVE

Cope Bros. and Fultz On Job To See That It's Right

There probably is nothing the average home owner buys that he knows less about than evergreens and shrubs, yet everyone does like a well kept and landscaped home.

Year after year many families are disappointed when ordering shrubs evergreens, trees or roses from some solicitor representing some unknown nursery or ordering from some firm who knows no more about nursery stock than the purchaser.

These things sometimes can not be helped. It isn't every community that is as fortunate as Salem, for here The Cope Bros. and Fultz Nurseries have been supplying the orchardist and many home owners for many years with stock grown right here under exactly the same conditions in which they will grow in your plantings.

The management at the Cope Bros. and Fultz Nursery on Depot rd is right here to make any adjustments necessary or help with the plantings. They are anxious that you succeed with their nursery stock and can give you dependable advice on how best to care for any nursery stock and at the same time, usually at less cost, than when you order from out of the city.

As to quality, you can see the plants before they are dug. In this way have just the right size to meet any condition and know that they will grow because they are fresh from the ground. In fact, it's the only safe way.

GRADUATION IS GIFT TIME, TOO

Art's Suggest That You Look Over Their Stock, Early

Within a few weeks, preparations will be practically completed for one of the outstanding events in the life of the young student—and that's graduation, both from high schools and the colleges and universities of the country.

It is an event to be long remembered and therefore it is entirely fitting that it be marked with a gift which, too, will be long treasured.

It is difficult to find graduation gifts more pleasing than jewelry and the accompanying lines, such as may be found at Art, the Jeweler's.

The problem of "What shall I give?" has been fully solved at Art's. They have assembled an outstanding selection of the preferred graduation gifts, for high school and college students. In anticipation of the heavy demand, no efforts have been spared. Art's announces, in order to offer all gift givers the latest designs and models in every item.

Few gifts are more genuinely appreciated than a watch, for instance. For those who plan to continue their studies, punctual attendance at class is assured. For those who go into the business world, nothing is as important as starting on time.

Watches, of course, are just one of the hundreds of items that will be available for parents and friends who desire to honor the graduates. There are radios, bracelets, rings, jewelry—in fact, practically anything in this field that is desired.

Art's suggest that you stop in now, or as soon as possible, and enjoy the advantage of early selection. Stocks are large now and all the latest and wanted designs are available.

Art's says that you may use the budget system of paying and make gift giving an easy matter.

RETREADING JOB IS GUARANTEED

Martin Tire Sales Says You'll Get 10,000 Extra Miles

Retreading, like many other new things, has been cheapened in the hands of those who think only of quick money to be made. The fact is, if a good automobile or truck casing is retreaded with the regular factory rubber compound that they use in the construction of a new tire it will wear just as long and give exactly the same service as if it was vulcanized to new fabrics.

The Martin Tire Sales at 736 E. Pershing st. use regular factory methods and the compounds of rubber are exactly the same as used at the factory. That's why many motorists in the Salem district have learned from experience that when their tires wear smooth it is economy to have them retreaded when you consider the cost is about a third the price of a new tire, yet will give you a mileage on a new one.

Guarantee 10,000 Miles There is only one condition that can exist that makes retreading impractical and that is to attempt to retread a tire that has had the fabric damaged, usually caused by running the tire with air pressure low. In other words, if the tire is all right, except for a worn tread, it is perfectly all right to have it retreaded.

At the Martin Tire Sales, they will examine the tire, and if they say it is all right to retread it, they mean it, and to assure you they know, they guarantee you 10,000 miles of service from the retread job.

That means, of course, you will likely run the tire 20,000 miles as many have and more that they can refer you to right here in Salem.

Aside from retreading they sell all the Martin Tire company tires and operate as dealers for this district.

Retreads or new tires can be had on a budget plan to meet your requirements. Martin Tires are Salem made.

PARIS CLEANING WORK COMPLETE

No Operations Slighted At This Modern Establishment

When you send clothing or other articles to the Paris Cleaners for renewing and refreshing you can be sure that when they come back they will be exactly right, not only from the standpoint of cleaning, but also from the standpoint of shape and size.

This is one of the many varied services which the Paris renders and which is a vital part of every complete dry cleaning service.

In some instances, "bargain" cleaners may skip some of these items. In fact, they may have to in order to cut the cost of the operation.

But reliable cleaners, such as the Paris, never offer bargains in the way of cut prices. They do not slight operations which are essential to a satisfactory cleaning job.

Every cleaning job requires certain essential functions in order that the work may be done correctly. The Paris clings to a rigid standard in this respect and that is one reason for so many satisfied customers.

HARD STEERING CAUSE REMOVED

Shimmy, Weave, Excessive Tire Wear Also Eliminated

The equipment pictured above is the Bear system of wheel alignment, axle and frame straightening. The purpose of this equipment is to restore cars that suffer from this type of trouble, to the manufacturer's original specifications.

Shimmy, wander, weave, hard steering and excessive tire wear are the results of misalignment. The cause may be a bent or twisted frame, bent axle or twisted knees; a bent spindle, a bent tie rod which has resulted from bumps against the curbing, hitting chuck holes in the pavement and minor collisions.

The Bear System by means of scientific gauges tells whether or not the car is out of line and exactly where the trouble lies. Then powerful hydraulic presses remedy the cause.

The effect of the Bear system alignment service is easier steering, economy on tires and greater safety.

Matt Klein, on Newgarden ave., is a factory Bear system trained operator, and as new car models are produced he returns to the factory to get actual experience in the use of the gauges to meet the new conditions. Mr. Klein's shop is completely equipped to take care of alignment on any make of car. He keeps it up to date with new gauges as needed and factory specification charts so that perfect service is rendered in every case.

Aside from specializing in Bear system service he also does body rebuilding and repairing upholstery and painting.

TWENTY YEARS AGO (Issue of May 2, 1920)

Consolidation of the Broadway laundry and the Kirk-bridge laundry, Ellsworth ave., took effect Saturday afternoon when C. V. Rakestraw took over the management. He will conduct the business at the plant on Broadway. The new concern will be known as "American Laundry Company," successor to The Broadway Laundry. A number of improvements are being made at the Broadway plant and complete and new equipment will be installed.

(Reprinted from Salem News Thursday, May 2, 1940)

THANKS A MILLION

A million thanks to you, residents of Salem and vicinity, for the million dollars' worth of business you have given us during the past twenty years!

Just 20 years ago, we started as a small town laundry in a "two by twice" room on the site of our present location. We grew and grew and grew as you have demanded more and more services from us.

First we added Rug Cleaning to our Laundry Service, then a Linen Supply Service. About 15 years ago, we started in the Dry Cleaning business and have excelled in this work ever since. Just recently we have built a Cold Storage plant for the storing of fine furs and woolsens.

We now employ 35 people and service customers in an area of 25 miles of Salem. Towns served by us are Columbiana, Palestine, Lisbon, Leetonia, Rochester, Hanoverton, Kensington, Carrollton, etc.

YOU CAN ALWAYS DEPEND ON THE AMERICAN LAUNDRY FOR THE FINEST LAUNDRY SERVICE AND GUARANTEED MOTH-PROOF DRY CLEANING.

Again We Say, "Thanks a Million"

Theater Attractions

An excellent cast, good direction and editing and fine work by author and screen writers make the film version of Howard Spring's successful novel, "My Son, My Son!", at the State theater tonight and Tuesday, an outstanding dramatic picture.

Brian Aherne, Madeleine Carroll and Louis Hayward, all English-born, star in the story which is laid in England and Ireland. Others in the cast are Josephine Hutchinson, Henry Hull, Sophie Stewart, Lorraine Day and Bruce Lester.

The story concerns a father, William Essex, who, as a boy, knew the hardships of poverty and determines to give his son everything the child demands; a mother who watches the father ruining her son's life by his lenience; a son whose early tendencies to dishonesty and insincerity bring great unhappiness to all who love him; a young artist who loves the father and is tormented by the son's love for her; a young actress whose life is ruined by the son's insincerity.

The story's chief beauty lies in the character portrayal and the picture's fine performances add to the written piece.
